Ten comes from a deep underground source in the mountains near the city of Geumjin, a beautiful port-side town in the northeast corner of South Korea. It is said that the shape of the hills behind the port look like the Chinese character 'Geum' so that the city was called Geumjin. The Large Catch Festival is held on March 3 and September 9, residents and visitors practicing Yujamang (a way to catch by setting a net in a line in the middle of the sea) and Jeongchimang (a way to catch consistently by setting a net like a house in a fixed place under the sea). The mountains around Geumjin, where the famous Ten mineral water comes from, are rich in various minerals and natural beauty.
